The Burnham Raiders are causing trouble, with their fires almost reaching the gates of the city. King John is already preparing for the worst and has removed all of Novelmore's treasures. Among them are also the drawings of Dario Da Vinci. Fortunately, Dario has all his plan well remembered, and the young heroes of Novelmore aren't even thinking about giving up! Together with Gwynn and Arwynn, he develops a mobile fortress - a combination of catapult and arrow shooter. With its help, the Knights of Novelmore can attack the lightly-guarded outposts of the Burnham Raiders, and hopefully gain the upper hand in this battle.

The Burnham Raiders rely on the power of fire in their fight against Novelmore. The wild bunch of outlaws and bandits are fascinated by this element that keeps their community together. Even their fortress was built in a huge volcanic crater. The secret weapon of the Burnham Raiders are various fire creatures they have tamed: horses with fiery manes and glowing eyes, the Spirit of Fire - summoned by the Guardian of Fire, Pyralia - and even fire-breathing dragons! These are trained by the dragon tamer Tyragon, so that they can unleash their fire on the knights of Novelmore.

The Burnham Raiders use their lava mine to extract the special rock they use for their schemes. Here, they also forge all weapons and produce the ammunition for the lava catapults and machines. Despite its important function, the lava mine is a weakness for the Burnham Raiders, because it is located outside the fortress, presenting the Knights of Novelmore with a unique opportunity to attack. But, the Burnham Raiders have taken precautions and set up a manned outpost in the flaming ruins for protection. Moreover, the bravest of the fiery gang have been experimenting with a secret liquid that could give them a clear advantage in the battle to come. Will the heroes of Novelmore manage to stop the disruption in time? Or will the Burnham Raiders' stronghold withstand their attacks?
